Cortec® Brings Global Innovation To LatinCorr 2014!

Cortec® Corporation and Colombian distributor, Energía Integral Andina S.A., successfully exhibited at LatinCorr 2014, “IX Latin American Congress of Corrosion” that took place in the beautiful city of Medellín - Colombia, from October 28th – 31st, 2014. This event was organized by the Colombian Association of Corrosion Engineers – NACE Colombia and NACE INTERNATIONAL. The congress had one of the largest participation of corrosion professionals from Latin America and other parts of the world with over 120 companies displaying their products and services.

LatinCorr 2014, “IX Latin American Congress of Corrosion” offered technical lectures and conferences, training opportunities and spaces where participants were able to obtain valuable data and knowledge from peers and colleagues.

Cortec® Vice President of International Sales, Dario Dell’Orto, had the honor of presenting the topic, “Protecting Concrete Reinforcement Using Admixture with Migrating Corrosion Inhibitor and Water Repellent Component” to a full house at one of the workshops available at LatinCorr. Over 130 workshops and conferences with topics such as: Cathodic Protection in Gas and Oil Production, Corrosion Mitigation of Firefighting Protection Systems, Corrosion Problems Related to Water Systems and the Environment, Coating Technologies for the Oil and Gas Industry, Corrosion Inhibitors and Localized Corrosion Phenomena, among others were also presented.

Cortec® Corporation, the global leader in innovative environmentally responsible VpCI® and MCI® corrosion control technologies, continues to show its power around the world. LatinCorr was another success and provided Cortec® with great exposure to the Latin America corrosion protection technology markets.
